The present invention refers to a method for treating visual deficits comprising at least one step of injecting in the eye of a subject in need thereof a therapeutically effective amount of photoactive nanoparticles (NPs) or a composition comprising said photoactive nanoparticles (NPs).